

ETHICAL HUMAN PSYCHOLOGY AND PSYCHIATRY

An International Journal of Critical Inquiry

Ethical Human Psychology and Psychiatry (EHPP) is the peer-reviewed, official journal of the International Society for Ethical Psychology and Psychiatry (ISEPP). Founded in 1971, the society is an interdisciplinary network of professionals and others concerned with maintaining the highest possible principles and scientific standards in psychology and psychiatry.

Because of its many successful efforts on behalf of ethics, justice, and truthfulness in the psychosocial and biomedical sciences, the society has been called “the conscience of psychiatry.” In addition to the journal, the society produces a newsletter and holds an annual conference. Further information about the society may be obtained from <http://psychintegrity.org>.

EHPP publishes scientific research, literature reviews, clinical reports, commentary, and book reviews that draw on broad ethical and scientific perspectives, including critiques of reductionist theories and practices in any school of thought or ideology. It spans the fields of psychology, counseling, social work, nursing, sociology, education, public advocacy, public health, and the law, as well as psychiatry, pediatrics, neurology, genetics and psychopharmacology. Overall, EHPP seeks to raise the level of scientific knowledge and ethical discourse, while empowering professionals who are devoted to principled human sciences and services unsullied by professional and economic interests.

If a manuscript is accepted, page proofs will be sent to authors and must be returned within the time frame specified by production managers. Changes at that point will be limited to the correcting of printing errors, spelling, dates, and grammar. Substantive changes such as adding phrases, sentences, and paragraphs are not permitted without the Editor's approval.

Authors are responsible for the content and accuracy of any statements made in their articles.
